Books

- 2016 Queer Theory: The French Response. Stanford, CA: Stanford University Press, 288 pp.

In 2012 and 2013, masses of French citizens took to the streets to demonstrate against a bill on gay marriage. But demonstrators were not merely denouncing what they viewed as the potentially damaging effects of gay marriage; they were also claiming that its origins lay in "gender theory," an ideology imported from the United States. By "gender theory" they meant queer theory in general and, more specifically, the work of noted scholar Judith Butler. Now French opponents to gay marriage, supported by the Vatican, are attacking school curricula that explore male/female equality, which they claim is further proof of gender theory's growing empire. They fear that this pro-homosexual propaganda will not only pervert young people, but also destroy the French nation itself.

What are the various facets of the French response to queer theory, from the mobilization of activists and the seminars of scholars to the emergence of queer media and the decision to translate this or that kind of book? Ironically, perceiving queer theory as a threat to France means overlooking the fact that queer theory itself has been largely inspired by French thinkers. By examining mutual influences across the Atlantic, Queer Theory: The French Response analyzes changes in the idea of national identity in France and the United States. In the process, the book offers a new theory of minority politics: an ongoing critique of norms is not only what gives rise to a feeling of belonging; it is the very thing that founds citizenship.

- 2014 The Politics of Adoption. Gender and the Making of French Citizenship. Cambridge, MA: The MIT Press, 210 pp.

Revised and updated English-language version of Penser l'adoption, translated from French by Deke Dusinberre. Includes new introduction and additional pages on the latest developments in European jurisprudence, on the transcription of foreign adoptions by same-sex couples in French law, and on the current debates on marriage, adoption, and assisted procreation in the parliamentary arena and the media. The Politics of Adoption argues that adoption is not a mere family question. It conveys a model of citizenship. Adoption works indeed as a metaphor for national belonging and thus frames debates and policy-making on immigration, race, and religion. The Politics of Adoption also evidences a new type of governance, based on rhetoric of risk, and highly monitored models of social behaviors, to which citizens are expected to identify voluntarily. Adoptive parents are expected to behave as if they were biological parents. Policies, jurisprudence, and social work define an ideal image of parenthood with the hope of better controlling the making of future citizens.

Review: French Politics, Culture, and Society 33(3), winter 2015.

- 2012 Penser l'adoption. La gouvernance pastorale du genre (Rethinking Adoption. The Pastoral Governance of Gender) Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 218 pp.

For the past thirty years, bioethics committees in France have promoted a greater focus on biological origins. The body has literally become sacred. Surrogacy is in fact forbidden, and assisted procreation is limited to sterile heterosexual couples. Adoption is often described as a site of resistance, for an adopted child can have from one to four legal parents (adoptive families –single people or married couples – can either replace biological families or be added to them.) However, by rewriting the civil status of the adopted child as if he/she were born from his/her adoptive parents, adoption also pays tribute to biological filiation. Penser l'adoption argues that adoption policies question the biological drift of French law, but also the imagined national community. Drawing from my PhD dissertation, Penser l'adoption offers a study of parliamentary debates since 1945, as well as French and European case law. It questions the interface between migration policies and adoption and the emergence of the concept of parenting in the mass media. It also throws light on social work by developing a discursive analysis of the various types of justification that agents of the Child Social Welfare Agency deploy when accrediting a parent for adoption. By questioning their stereotypes with regards to gender, race, and sexuality, Penser l'adoption asks more specifically how adoption reshapes kinship and belonging.

- 2008 Le Président des États-Unis (The American President) with Christine Ockrent. Paris: Dalloz, 206 pp.

Written at the time of the presidential election of 2008, Le Président des États-Unis explains constitutional rules and political practices to non-specialists of American politics in the francophone world. With forewords by Christine Ockrent, one of the most prominent journalists in France and a specialist of the United-States, Le Président des États-Unis introduces and comments on texts and data (constitution, discourses, jurisprudence, schemes, chronologies, etc.) about the American Presidency with regards to the balance of power, federalism, and political leadership.

- 2007 Cinquante ans de vie politique française. Le débat sur la fin de la V^e République (The End of the Fifth Republic? Fifty Years of Political Debate) Paris: Librio/Flammarion, 96 pp.

This short introduction to French institutions offers insights into the Fifth Republic to undergraduate students. Cinquante ans de vie politique française uses ten themes (The Emergence of Constitutionalism, The Electoral Bug, The Presidential Hegemony, Jacobinism, but also, the European Democracy, Affirmative Action, The Globalization of Law, etc.), to ask what would be the best possible reforms for better governance and a more balanced democracy in contemporary France.

- 2006 Homosexualité. Dix clés pour comprendre, vingt textes à découvrir (Homosexuality: Ten Keys to Understanding, Twenty Texts to Be Discovered) Paris: Librio/Flammarion, 96 pp.

Homosexualité is an anthology of texts on homosexual cultures, rights, and identities. The book analyzes ten themes (The History of a Category; Homophobia; Health; Family; School, etc.) and introduces a variety of texts for each of them. Homosexualité combines reference contributions in philosophy (Plato, Bentham, Freud, Sartre, Beauvoir, Foucault, Wittig, etc.); classical (Genet, Balwin, Guibert, etc.) and more contemporary literary pieces (Bourauoui, Honoré, etc.); also political contributions, gay friendly as well as homophobic (Himmler, Vive la Révolution, Badinter, etc.). Some forgotten or rare poems are part of this short anthology too, like Pontus de Tyard's and Vivien's. Forewords by Jack Lang, former French Minister of Culture and Education.

Edited Books

- 2017 Les Défis de la République (Challenging the Republic: Gender, Multilevel Governance, and Citizenship), co-edited with Joan W. Scott, Paris: Presses de Sciences Po, 217pp.

How does political change occur? Les Défis de la République brings together eight distinguished contributors who assess the impact of demands for voting rights for non-citizens, campaigns for the rights of gays and lesbians, and for equal access to political office for women and men. As a point of departure, the book considers the career of Françoise Gaspard—a scholar, activist and political leader—who launched the idea of political parity in France, authored numerous policy proposals to implement gender equality in European cities, and helped rewrite constitutions throughout the world (notably in Rwanda and Tunisia) as the French delegate to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women. At this moment focused on the coming presidential election in France, Les Défis de la République intervenes in an important discussion about the nature of change, and argues for incrementalism in the face of conservative backlash.

Editor's contribution: introduction written with Joan W. Scott: "Transforming the Republic," pp. 11-31.

- 2007 Le Choix de l'homosexualité. Recherches inédites sur la question gay et lesbienne (The Coming Out of Queer Studies in France) Paris: Éditions de l'École Lacanienne, 277 pp.

Editor's contribution: preface, "The Coming Out of Gay and Lesbian Studies in France," pp. 9-27.

Le Choix de l'homosexualité aims to present the work of a young generation of researchers who contribute to the development of gay and lesbian studies in France. Following the track of Françoise Gaspard and Didier Eribon's seminar Sociology of Homosexuality at the School for Advanced Studies in Social Sciences (EHESS), the book introduces a variety of contributions in the social sciences and the humanities: The Erotic Sunkrisis in Pseudo-Lucian's Work; Homosexuality and Christian Friendship in the late Antiquity and Middle-Age; The Movement of Women in Black in Palestine; Aids and the Reconfiguration of Gay Identities in France; Gay Commercial Scene in Contemporary Paris; The Celebrations of Civil Unions in France; Lesbian Mothers and the Sense of Kinship; etc. Last, Le Choix de l'homosexualité opens a dialog between this new generation and internationally recognized authors who also contributed to the volume, such as Remi Lenoir, Marie-Elizabeth Handman, Michael Lucey, and Judith Butler.

Reviews: Le Monde des livres, June 2007; Libération, June 2007.

- 2006 Homoparentalités: approches scientifiques et politiques (Gay and Lesbian Parenting: Scholarly and Political Issues). Co-edited with Anne Cadoret, Martine Gross and Caroline Mécary. Paris: Presses Universitaires de France, 444 pp.
 Editor's contribution: preface written with Anne Cadoret: "The Making of Contemporary Families," pp. 17-24. Article: "Adoption Agencies: an Essay on the General Interest," pp. 163-173.

Homoparentalités are the proceedings of an international conference on gay parenting organized in October 2005 by the four editors of the volume. The book compares not only different parenting types (co-parenting, assisted procreation, adoption, surrogacy, etc.), but also social movements and laws in many European countries and worldwide. With more than forty articles, it is the most extensive contribution to the study of gay parenting published in French. Among the contributors: Kees Waardijk, Petra de Sutter, Andrew Yip, Stephen Whittle, Alain-Charles Van Gysel, Sigrun Saur Stiklestad, Francesc Jaurena, Daniel Borrillo, Line Chamberland, Jacques Commaille, etc. Forewords by Bertrand Delanoë, former mayor of Paris, and Françoise Tulkens, Justice at the European Court of Human Rights.

La Présence minoritaire (Minority Presence).

Orlando attack, BlackLivesMatter movement, protests against gay marriage in France... what troubles social order is not only struggles for rights, but also the actual presence of minorities. Works in queer theory that focus on futurity tend to dissolve the subject in the name of non-identity and non-normativity. Conversely, works in LGBT studies attempt to recollect a collective past and face the risk of essentializing the subject. I offer an alternative approach that focuses on the “present of presence” (Derrida). I maintain that minority presence is threatening because it reminds majority groups that they are only a temporary and precarious aggregate of minority interests. Instead, I offer a theory of non-majority representation.

The Operative Community (expected submission late 2018)

In the context of the collapse of communism in Western Europe, several philosophers—notably Maurice Blanchot and Jean-Luc Nancy—have striven to rethink the notion of “le commun.” Drawing on Marguerite Duras’s novel The Malady of Death, they argue that a community always escapes all attempts to grasp it since death is the only thing we truly have in common. I will show that disavowing one’s sense of belonging is a luxury that minorities cannot afford. Building on Didier Eribon’s work, I will suggest that “community” is not a constantly receding horizon but a critical return to an experienced event. I will offer new insights on writers—such as Rachid O., Nina Bouraoui, or Édouard Louis—whose work questions their own trajectories across cultural and social borders.
